What's Happening In The Classroom

Music Dance Drama

We have begun thinking about the concert items with a brainstorming session last Thursday. We have many ideas already for our theme so we will now begin the learning of lyrics, dance steps etc. Our theme is "TV Music" which should bring back some memories.

Senior Room

The students are continuing to learn about aspects of sustainability via articles in the Herald Sun.

Congratulations to Milla and Emily who have completed all Term 2 Homework tasks.

This week we have started to use the Readers Theatre (a book of plays). In our first play we all played characters in a play about a child and a pickle that had a first-hand experience with the digestive system.

In the footy tipping Milla is still narrowly holding on to top position. Emily has joined Ryan in equal second position. Jacob after a slow start is slowly clawing himself closer to the leader.

The senior students have been having a regular morning fitness session, involving hoops, skipping ropes and running, to raise the heart rate and the body temperature on these cold mornings.

JUNIOR ROOM

This week in writing, we have written letters to some older people we know, asking them to complete a survey about their own time at school. It will be very interesting to see if things were done differently when they were at school.

Just a little reminder, Please do your reader and spelling words each night. Remember to get an adult to sign.

Student Voice

On Monday the prep-5 students read a Big Book version of the Three Billy Goat Gruff. As well as using synonyms to change the verbs and adjectives in the story, they also wrote their own version of a part of the story (quick write) from the perspective of one of the characters.

Once upon a time, there were three Billy Goats Gruff. They were grazing on a very dust infested paddock and worst of all there were giant ticks. There was a bridge over a creek all rich with rich lush grass. However, best of all there were no giant tick for a matter of fact there were no ticks at all. There was only one issue. There was a troll protecting the bridge. They tried to get over it many times but it never lead to success.

One day they decided they would try one more time. There was a fierce battle. They thought they were going to lose. Half way through the battle the little Billy Goat Gruff knew they could not hold the troll off for much more time. So he went on a mission to get help from the American army. He went to meet Donald Trump. Donald agreed it was worth it so he sent all his men to the battle site. When they got there, the other three Billy Goats Gruff were very tired. They were glad little Billy Goat Gruff received help from the American army. (At first, they thought he ran away but they did not tell him that). One of the soldiers shot the troll. In one shot, he was dead. The three Billy Goats Gruff thanked Donald Trump for sending the army.

Because the troll was dead, they could cross the bridge. Now they can eat all the grass they want. They can also cross the bridge whenever they want. They also sent the army home with a million hay bales so they could feed all the goats in America.

The extremely happy end.

I am a billy goat. My name is Lilly. I live in Sydney near the Sydney Harbour Bridge. I live with my sisters. My sisters names are Bree and Milla. Milla is the bossy one. We are not very lucky because I can't go over the Sydney Harbor Bridge.

I am a troll. I live in San Francisco. Actually I live right near the Golden Gate Bridge. I helped to construct it but quit after an angry goat and his family didn't want to take a short cut. You may have heard the story, well from the goat's perspective. They go on and on, 'Blah blah blah! The troll wouldn't let them over the bridge! Blah blah blah.'

So once upon a time... and all that other junk, I was painting these beams and this guy gets out of his car and talks some bad language to one of my colleagues and I wasn't just going to stand there and let him do it. So I stomp up to this guy and tell him there's no need for road rage, but this guy just isn't quitting. So he throws some punches at me and I just think it's going to be easier if I just eat him right up. Of course his family call the cops on me and lock all the doors on their car and so on so on.

They called in all these new reporters but it just wasn't good enough for the news so they throw in the bit that I ate this guy. My trial got sent to court and of course I was thrown in the clink for about 20 years. I have been kicked out because there was too many criminals. I got out lucky as a matter of fact because I just received another 20 years of community service picking up trash on the side of the high way. I don't think I deserve that because I had a reason to eat this guy or he would have broken every bone in my body. I mean I'm not that bad. But do you think I did the wrong thing? You be the judge.

DON'T FORGET YOUR PETS THIS WINTER!

MEDIA RELEASE

Winter is now upon us and the temperature is dropping! With the weather getting colder, Gannawarra Shire Council is encouraging residents to remember their pets during the cooler months.

Mayor Brian Gibson says it's important for pet owners to continue spending time with their furry friends and ensuring they are warm and safe.

"If it is too wet or cold to take them for a walk, try to spend some time undercover with your pet. Alternatively, ask a friend, relative or pet carer to visit your home to give your dog some company," Mayor Gibson says.

"Unfortunately pets can easily become lonely and bored. They need stimulation and attention, and if these needs aren't addressed, dogs start barking, digging, destroying gardens and furniture or escaping from the property."

If your dog gets anxious when left alone, speak to your vet or an animal behaviourist. If your lifestyle and budget allows it, consider getting a second dog for company, and ensure you understand how to safely introduce a new dog to the household.

There are many websites available with advice on ways to spend time with, or entertain your four-legged friend, <http://agriculture.vic.gov.au/pets/dogs/your-dogs-welfare-needs> is a great place to start.

"I would remind pet owners that fines and potential legal action can occur if their animal is barking and causing a nuisance, not securely confined to their property, or if it attacks another dog or a person," Mayor Gibson explains.

For more information please contact Council on 5450 9333.

National Burns Awareness Month

Did you know that 88% of Australians know to treat a burn immediately, but only 10% do so correctly?*

Acting in the first 5 minutes of a serious burn can dramatically reduce the chances of long-lasting and severe damage to the skin and body.

National Burns Awareness Month is all about First Aid for minor burns, and St John was lucky enough to partner with the Julian Burton Foundation to create our Burns First Community Program to assist in helping raise burns awareness.

Burns First aims to promote the importance of care and prevention activities associated with burn injuries across Australia, and to raise awareness of accurate treatment of burns.

A Quick Guide to Treating Burns

Burn injuries are extremely painful and the risk of infection is high because the outer layer of skin is damaged. Although burns do not bleed, burn injuries result in fluid loss, loss of temperature control and can damage underlying layer of tissue and nerves
